CITY OUGHT TO OPERATE FERRY

A large delegation of citizens from South Brooklyn attended the hearing before the Sinking Fund to-day on the project to municipalize the Thirty-ninth street ferry. Speakers from various boards of trade and transportation in Brooklyn and Manhattan addressed the Commissioners in favor of the plan to make the present ferry more adequate to the demands of traffic by obtaining city ownership.

Deputy Fire Commissioner Doyle, James Cassidy, Alderman Malone and a number of others from the Seventh Assembly District made addresses. Other speakers declared that Dock Commissioner Featherston's statement that the city could not operate the ferry but at a loss was short-sighted, inasmuch as enhanced property interests attracted by a complete and thorough service would more than repay the city in increased taxes. C. C. Slayter, the speaker, said:

FERRY A WORRY TO MR. GROUT

Comptroller GROUT is seeking the best business course available for the city to pursue in the operation of the new Staten Island ferry. Addressing the Sinking Fund on the subject to-day the Comptroller said:

Within a few months the City will be in complete possession of the boats, old and new, with the terminals and houses of the Staten Island Ferry. As yet, however, no plans have been made as to the manner in which the ferry is to be operated.

There are but two ways: either the City may operate the boats employing itself all the help necessary, or it may contract with some person or corporation for a fixed period to operate and manage the ferries." He said also that the operation would probably be at a loss the city would need to devise some way to reimburse the contractor of work were let out.

Mr. GROUT said he thought the Dock Department and the Law Department should be asked for views on the many questions involved in either method of operation.
